Principal Report grievance redressal related to examination

The university selects the testing locations where students take their final semester exams. The university has granted our college center status, and according to the schedule chosen by the institution, sessional exams are held twice a year. The institution appoints both external and internal examiners for the aforementioned exams. Internal and external examiners oversee the administration of exams throughout university sessions.

The invigilator provides all examinees with instructions prior to the exam to prevent cheating, the use of fake students, and other unethical actions. The University's Bharari team visits each center during the exam time, and if any sort of coffee is discovered, appropriate disciplinary measures are taken against the offending student in accordance with University policies.

The grievance redressal chamber is operational in the college and can be used if there are any complaints involving conduct, exam planning, curriculum, demonstrations, human factors, libraries, playgrounds, or physical amenities.

Students at this location register complaints. Under the leadership of the Principal, the Grievance Redressal Cell convenes twice a year in the college. In these discussions, the actual student issues, complaints regarding the exams, and other suggestions are discussed. For the purpose of accepting student suggestions, a suggestion box has been kept in the college. The college will get the essential suggestions from the students in that box, and the needs of the students will thereby be taken into account.
